It has been known for some time that the treasurer was hard pressed. The Paople Ask for Bread and Their Rep-resentatives Give Them a Stone—More Bonds Is the Logical Besult.

Washington, January 9 .- (Special.)-The Carlisle currency bill was worse than deceated in the house today. By a vote of 122 to 129, the house refused to adopt an order reported from the committee on rules This settled the question and the bill was then practically withdrawn. Instead of further considering it, the house took up appropriation bills.

Of the votes against the adoption of the order 39 were democrats and of this 39 all except 15 were defeated in the last elecden. As strange as it may seem, but four of these thirty-nine democrats who voted five come from the south and west. Of the gainst the order there were Railey of Texas, Bland, Bryan, Capehart of West Virginia; Cockrell and Cooper, Texas; Ellis. mer, South Carolina; McRae, Arkansas; doney, Mississippi; Robertson, Louisiana; Money, Mississippi; Robertson, Louisiana; Shell, South Carolina; Snodgrass, Tennes-see; Strait and Tolbert, South Carolina. These influences have encompassed its defeat. I think its failure a great loss to the south, as it would have emancipated that section from Wall street financial domination. To be frank, I see little possibility of financial legislation at this session."

What Georgians Say of It. "The vote today," said Colonel Livingston, Georgia, "simply means that the democratic party has told Mr. Cleveland it is tired of his financial policy. Therefore, it would seem that the senate will do no more tariff tinkering at this session. On the latter subject it seems that there have been much wrangling and fighting in the cabinet. Cleveland and Gresham have overruled him by declaring that Germany has a right to make complaint on account of our disto make complaint on account of our dis-criminating duty against its sugar. Mr. Dingley, republican of Maine, suggested to Mr. Outhwaite that a modification be made in the rule so as to permit the house direct to consider sections 9 and 10 of the bill, relating to state banks, for if they were not to be rehabilitated the house might change the details contained Inquiries were made by Mr. Beltzhoover, democrat, of Pennsylvania, and Mr. Bland, democrat, of Missouri, as to the status of the amendment the former proposes to offer, authorizing the sale of $600,000,000 of bonds, and the substitute of which the latter had given notice providing for the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 18 to 1.

THE STRENGTH OF THE ARMY.

Emperor William Urges the Import ance of It to His Guests. Berlin, January 9.—Emperor William gave a reception at the palace last evening to which were invited prominent politicians of all parties in the reichstag. The empe-ror, in an address to his guests, urged the importance of further increasing the strength of the German navy and especially called attention to the necessity of aug-menting the freets of south American, Afri-can and east Asian stations. The kaiser defield the report that it was at his wish that the words to the "German restee!" that the words to the "German nation" were omitted from the inscription over the portal of the new reichstag building. The presence of Count von Hornpesch, clerical leader, was generally noted and commented tpon, as it is the first time he has visited the palace since Culturkampf.

The Anti-Revolution Bill. The Anti-Revolution Bill.

Berlin, January 9.—The debate on the anti-revolution bill was resumed in the reichstag this afternoon. Baron von Stumm Hakeburg, free conservalive, made a fierce attack upon the socialists and declared that he himself would have proposed a much severer law than the one now under discussion. Aparchies here developed the severe law than the one now under discussion.

Herr Graeber, on behalf of the centrists, said he and his colleagues were willing to combat revolution, but the center would not assist in passing an elastic law to strengthen the hands of the government which calls upon Catholics to fight for their religion but rejects a law adopted by the reichstag modifying the restrictions against Jesuits.

Sampson escaped, and since that time he has led the police a lively chase. Some of the members of the gang were arrested, and Sampson was indicted by the grand jury of Cook county for murder. Holton says tonight that he is now ahead and gaining. His friends, however, fear a combination of Pritchard and Moti. They recognize the Pritchard and Moti. They recognize the latter to be a dangerous man. Marion Eutler, the populist leader, is the man to whom all these republicans are looking, but he is not talking. Several members expressed themselves on cotton growing and the best way to increase the price of cotton. It was resolved to form a permanent organization, and a resolution was offered by Mr. Pipes, of Louisiana, against dealing in cotton futures and calling on members of congress to support the Hatch bill. Adopting a Name.

Mr. Lane, for the committee on permanent organization, submitted a report, which was adopted, recommending that the association be known as the Cotton Growers' Protective Association, and providing for the election or appointment of officers and executive committees for the national and state associations; that for the present year the national officers appoint the state presidents and that they appoint the presidents of county associations, all officers after 1895 to be elected.

to improve the quality of our domestic sugars? The question promptly suggests its own answer: To add to the value of the sugar, which added value secures to the the sugar, which added value secures to the planter a greater net profit on his labor and capital expended in growing, harvesting, grinding and preparing it for market. This seems to me a clear illustration of what may be done by the cotton planter. If these things are true and applicable as suggested in sugar planting and other industries, then why cannot the cotton growers, by co-operative effort, establish in every city, town, village or hamlet in all the cotton-growing states, factories for the manufacture of their raw cotton into the more valuable commodities before final export or sale? Thus saving to the grower, the merchant, the laborer and the capitalist in their own midst the difference between the value of raw, ragged and condemned into yarn, at least, if not woven into fa-can easily be done if determined upon, and I believe I may safely predict that it will be done in the near future. At St. Paul, Minneapolis and other western cities ship flour to us instead of wheat, so we will soon be driven to shipping yarns to Fall River, Manchester and other manufacturing

'The flouring mills have ever sought the wheat fields of the northwest; why should not the spindle seek the cotton fields of the south? So far as we are involved our jutecovered foundling is to Manchester what the crude ore is to the blast furnace. By exporting the baled cotton we lose a perexporting the baled cotton we lose a per-centage which, at present prices, should by all means be kept at home—if we would live—jijst as the owner of the ore bed would/lose if he should ship from Alabama to the blast furnaces of Pennsylvania. He cannot do it and survive: Neither can we cotton growers, as matters now stand, con-tinue the course heretofore pursued without utter ruin and bankruptcy, and I verily believe that these conditions will continue for an indefinite time without united action on the part of the cotton growers of the southern states. I have no faith in higher priced cotton in the future. Indeed, I am not quite sure that it would not be a ca-lamity rather than a blessing; though it can go far above the present prices and still

"I do not wish to be understood as advo cating the erection of large central factories, involving the investment of immense sums of money, within the reach only of capitalists of large means; but rather the establishment of small mills at convenient localities for utilizing the cotton growers in their vicinity, and numerous enough to spin all the cotton, and so convenient and close together as to be able even to handle seed cotton and gin it in the factory as it is spen; thus saving the bagging and ties to the farmer, which is a clear loss under the Liverpool rules, and runs into millions of dollars every season. It would also save the great waste incident to the present method of hendling, sampling, etc., with all which the grower of the cotton is charged; but in his innocence he is ignorant of the but in his innocence he is ignorant of the fact, and could not help it if he knew it. In the estsalishment of these small spin-neries every cotton grower in the vicinity could subscribe stock payable in cotto for putting the factory in operation, and others not growing cotton could furnish capital for the plant.

Believers in Small Factories.

"Let the shares be small and within the reach of every one, however small his means. These small factories dotting the face of the country would afford employment to millions of men, women and children mow without means of support, though willing and anxious to work. The joint interest of each grower would entitle him to his share of whatever profit might wrise-from the product of the factory. There from the product of the factory. There would be built up, a co-operative spirit which would soon adjust itself to the changed conditions. The stockholder would look to the management of his mill for counsel, and advice, and if it were competent, as all such managements should be, he would always be informed and keep pace with his neighboring enterprise. These small factories, from good business reasoning, would naturally gravitate towards co-operation among themselves, all having a common end and purpose. This would lead to organization by states into interstate associations from the product of the factory. There end and purpose. This would lead to organization by states into interstate associations which could be led by the purpose and aim of all to a national or southern spinners' association through which the markets of the world would be reached, statistics gathered and compared, which would reflect light back to the farmer, affording intelligence and enlightenment where now prevail darkness and ignorance, the source of all our agricultural woes. If we are suffering from over-production I believe this suffering from over-production I believe this will stay it; nothing else can.

With the free use of fertilizers, improved methods of cultivation, and abundance of labor, large crops have come to stay, di-versify as you may. They should stay and it is our duty to make the most of them ard control them as far as possible

"By this small factory scheme the cotton oil trust can be wiped from the face, of the earth; for what is to prevent each factory from utilizing all the seeds raised in the vicinity by manufacturing them into off, meal, food stuffs and fertilizers? Thus the increment of wealth produced would broadcasted, as it were, among the people, instead of as now centralized in a few places and focalized in a few individuals who profit by our loss and grow rich off of misfortunes. If this contin fault will be ours; not theirs. If we fail to care for ourselves while the opportunity of-fers, they are not to blame for our sloth and unworthiness."

The convention then adjourned to 7:30 p. n., when the committee on resolutions is expected to report.

"We are authorized to state that a meeting of the farmers of Clarke county will be held at Grove Hill on the 19th of this month, for the purpose of ascertaining more fully the sentiment of the farmers of the fully the sentiment of the farmers of the county regarding the acreage of cotton to be planted this year. It is the opinion of a great many that the acreage should be decreased. But little good can be accomplished without organization, and it is proposed to perfect a county organization on that day. It is earnestly desired that every beat in the county be well represented. The farmers of this country seem fully aroused to the importance of making a change in their mode of farming."

Washington, January 9.-(Special.)-The democratic caucus on Monday afternoon well illustrated the division, differences and discord within the democratic party. It certainly demonstrated that the represen tatives now in congress intend to do nothing for the relief of the people. It also onstrated that a majority of the present democratic representation-a large ma jority of whom, however, have been dereated—are not in favor of doing anything or the currency question. The defeated ones do not seem inclined to do anything for the relief of the people and the defeated one are in the majority. They even voted down, by a majority of ten, a motion to coin silver dollars. A large number of formerly announced silver men simply show ed that they were not honest in their an-

No one here doubts but that the loss of North Carolina was due largely to the op position of the administration and congress to the free coinage of silver. Instead of leaving the people, Quay and Cameron are the kind

Brock Gets a Steam Launch.

Collector "Brock" Beckwith, at Savannah, has made himself very popular with the treasury department and manages to get what he wants. Today he was allowed new carpets for all his offices and a $2,000 steam launch for himself and his assistants. Brock will, therefore, be able to give his visiting friends a good time next sumity. ants. Brock will, therefore, be able to give his visiting friends a good time next summer. You know these launches are for pleasure as well as for business. The collector must entertain on them in order to maintain the dignity of the government. Mr. Cleveland established the policy on the lighthouse tenders, and it must extend down all along the line.

Went Back on the Committee.

Speaker Crisp, although a stanch friend of the currency bill, takes its sidetracking He expressed his surprise, however, that ion from that committee has failed to car ry the house during the four years he has held the office of speaker. He is more surprised, inasmuch as the rule had the unanimous endorsement of the caucus. The speaker was told that some of the opponents of the bill objected to the rule on the ground that it was so framed as to connents of the bill objected to the rule on the ground that it was so framed as to cut off amendments. The speaker replied that that was a mistake; that it did not differ from other rules in that particular, and that it simply limited the time when debate should close, as is the purpose of all rules of a similar character. He regarded it as unlikely that the committee on rules would report another order. He thinks the committee has done all that lies within their power to facilitate action of the measure and that when next it is brought to the attention of the house, it will be upon a motion of Mr. Springer to go into the committee of the whole to consider it.

Immediately after the announcement of the vote, Mr. Outhwaite said:

"Mr. Speaker, I withdraw the resolutions."

"Mr. Speaker, I withdraw the resolutions."

The house then turned its attention to the consideration of appropriation bills, and before adjournment, at 4:45 o'clock, had disposed of two-the diplomatic and consular and postoffice. The former carries a total of 1,585,118 and the latter 389,442,582. The chief incident of interest of the afternoon was the ringing speech of Mr. Hitt, republican, of Illinois, upon the necessity of locating United States consuls at Erezeroum and Harpool. They were ordered to be established without a dissenting vote.

The house committee on public buildings and grounds today ordered a favorable report on the bill of Mr. Alexander, of North Carolina, graining to the city of Charlotte, N. C., for use as a public park, such parts of the United States mint property in that city as may be unnecessary for the purpose for which it was purchased.

COMMITTEE REPORTS. An Important Amendment Made by

COTTON MILLS COMING SOUTH. The Superior Advantages Will Bring

Boston, Mass., January 9.—For some time there has been a gradual exodus of cotton manufacturers from the New England states to the south. Today a petition was presented at the statehouse from the Boot cotton mills of Lowell, asking for permission to manufacture outside of Massachusetts.

ately Ill in Macon.

HE IS UNCONSCIOUS AND DELIRIOUS OTHER DEALERS RAISE A ROW

It Is Probable That His Removal from Office Has Affected His Brain, Taken Ill in Atlanta.

Macon, Ga., January 9.-(Special.)-Frank Leverett, ex-United States marshal of the southern district of Georgia, lies at his home in this city critically ill, with the chances against his recovery. He has a complication of diseases, the main trou ble seeming to be enlargement of the liver, His brain is also affected. He has been unconscious and delirious for several days About three weeks ago he went to Wash ington city, presumably on business con nected with his removal from office as mar shal last December.

Leverett and his friends have always been disgruntled and displeased at his un ceremonious removal without having been given the slightest opportunity to defend himself against the charges While en route to Macon from Washington he was taken sick in Atlanta. He was first at the Kimball house and was ther removed to a relative's house, where he remained about two weeks, until Sunday when he was brought to Macon, accompanied by his wife.

Frank Leverett is one of the best known men and strongest democrats in Georgia. He has represented Putnam county in the legislature and has been a delegate to many state conventions. He was ordinary of Putnam county many years. President Cleveland appointed him marshal of the southern district of Georgia in 1893 over a number of strong competitors. He then removed to Macon from Eatonton. It is sincerely hoped by all that Leverett will survive the illness that appears to be

Daisy Price Puzzled.

Postmaster Daisy Price is badly bothered and has put all of his wits to work to try and solve a plan by which he can carry out certain instructions recently received from First Assistant Postmaster General F. H. Jones and at the same time continue to give the public efficient service. Since the establishment of the free mail delivery in Macon, sixteen years ago, the letter carriers have been required to assist in the distribution of the mails. Under the rules which Postmaster Price is now directed to which Postmaster Price is now directed to promulgate the carriers are relieved from assisting in this distribution and are for-bidden from entering the office except to deposit their collections. The performance of clerical work by carriers is absolutely prohibited and their work must be con-fined to the collection and delivery of mail. The rapid distribution of the mails is of great interest to the general public, and expeditious work cannot be accomplished at the Macon office if the carriers are not per great interest to the general registrous work cannot be accomplished at the Macon office if the carriers are not permitted to assist in the distribution, or if Postmaster Price is not given some special help in the way of distributors. At present there is not a regular distributing clerk in the Macon office. All the distribution has been done by the carriers.

The result of this new order will be to throw this additional work upon the inside clerical force, taking the registry clerk, the general delivery clerk, the money order clerk and the stamp clerks from their windows, which will be necessarily closed during this time. The clerical force of the office is already inadequate to the performance of the duties now imposed upon it, and every person has extra labor to do without any extra compensation. They are efficient officials, they would be unable to get through with their duties in the prescribed hours.

Postmaster Price has not yet put the new order into effect at the Macon postoffice. He has written to the department at Wachington and to Congressman Cabaniss concerning the true state of affairs here.

There is a law which says letter carriers shall not be required to work more than eight hours per day without extra compensation. It is thought that the new order of the authorities is to avoid the necessity of carriers working over eight hours so there can be no additional compensation.

Chief of Police Eutner is the only one of the head officials of the city whose salary was not cut by the mayor and council for the year 1895. His salary was left the same as last year-$1,200-and he was also allowed a salary of $300 extra as inspector of weights and measures. Chief Butner is not among the kickers today. This morning about 2 o'clock fire was discovered in the retail dry goods store of George W. Greene in Triangular block. But for the prompt work of the fire department there might have been a serious conflagration. The fire was confined to the store and was outed before much damage had been done to the building itself. The stock of goods was practically destroyed, chiefly by smoke and water. The building is the property of T. C. Burke, and the damage to it is fully covered by insurance. George W. Green & Co.'s loss is about $10,000, partially covered by insurance. The fire caught from a defective stove flue.

They Suggest a Lexow Committee-The Forest City Will Send Two Carloads of Provisions to Nebraska.

Savannah, Ga., January 9.-(Special.)-A circular headed "Do we need a Lexow com mittee," and signed by J. F. Guilmartin & Co., which was distributed on the streets this afternoon, has caused much commen in as well as out of political circles. The circular calls attention to an ordinance which states that no member of the board of aldermen shall directly or indirectly be interested in any city contract, and then it goes on to give an account of the purchase of nineteen mules for city work, several of which were sold to the city to the street and lane department by Alderman W. I. O'Brien, who is chairman of the street and lane department. Messrs Guilmartin & Co. call attention to the fact that if their bid had been given proper consideration, they could have sup-plied the city with mules, as per specifications, at a lower figure and at a saving to the taxpayers; that their bid was not considered and it is hinted that the intention was all the time to purchase some or all of the mules from Alderman O'Brien.

Mr. Guilmartin states that he took the letter to The Savannah Press and it refused to publish it. He therefore made hi statement in the shape of a hand bill. The matter has been widely circulated and dis-cussed, but no action has yet been taken

THE STORY OF A RECEIVERSHIP. Judge Palmer Expected to Get Cash for His Bonds.

Savannah, Ga., January 2.—(Special.)— There has been much interest here in the steps taken to place in the hands of a receiver the Electric railway and Savannah street railway, formerly the Savannah Street and Rural Resort Railway Company, which two corporations were consolidated last year under the name of the former company. Judgs H. E. W. Palmer, of Atlanta, representing H. A. Pevenr, of Lynn, Mass, filed the bill, and secured the appointment of Mr. John R. Young, of appointment of Mr. John R. When Mr. Palmer came to Savannah, it is said that he came with the idea that he would get the money for the $10,000 of bonds of the old Savannah Street Railway Company, which Mr. Pevear owns. He brought the petition and receivership order with him as a dernier resort, and on his arrival consulted with President J. S. Collins and the other officers of the com-pany, apparently under the impression that when the receivership papers were shown the money would be paid over. With this hope in view, the papers were withheld from the United States court here until, finding that the money was not forthof Deputy Clerk Gillespie, of the United States court, and filed the papers about 9 o'clock Monday night, just half an hour before his train left for Atlanta. The condition of the property as to the mortgages upon it has already been stated in thes dispatches. The action, it is believed, was brought about by an attempt to reorganize the property under a plan which would strengthen the security of the bondholders of the Electric Railway Company and weaken that of the bondholders in the old Savannah Street Railway Company. The majority bonds of the Electric Railway Company are held in Savannah among the directors and officers of the company aken scrip for their interest, which has not been paid in nearly two years. onded indebtedness on each of the prop erties is $250,000, with a nominal second of consolidated mortgage of $600,000 on both The Electric railway bonds have been bringing about 65 on the market, but few were offered. They declined somewhat or account of decreased earnings, resulting from the street car war between this line and competing lines owned by George Parsons, of New York.

It is charged that $20,000 insurance re-ceived for destruction by fire of some old Savannah street railway property, which was included in the mortgage on line, and for the bondholders of w the Central Trust Company, of New York, is trustee, was misapplied by paying off part of the obligation to the former owners of the Savannah street railway, making repairs on that line and building a carshed. No interest has been paid since December 1, 1893, and no taxes for that year. It is believed the property has been insolvent since about that time. It has not yet been determined how the receivership will affect the street car war. Receiver Young says, for the present, fares will remain the same, which is 1 cent on the most closely competing lines with those owned by Parsons, and 2 cents on the others.

The testimony this morning was interesting Officer Tom Stringer, whose left eye was shot out by Wiggins, was the third witness. Mr. Stringer's face was bandaged and for the first time he gave his account of the affray. He said:

"On the Sunday the shooting occurred I was walking my beat on Broad street, from Marbury to Hawk's gully. While standing on McKinne street a darky came to me and said that Lieutenant Desmond had sent him to me to aid in capturing a negro boy who had killed a man over in Carolina the night before. At the time the negro came to me, I was busy. I soon had occasion to go to a telephone to speak to headquarters. Lieutenant Desmond then told me about going to find a negro who was wanted in Carolina, and said he had ordered Sergeant Damish, at the uptown barracks to join me.

While Wrenn and I were waiting at the corner of Broad and McKinne street for Sergeant Damish, Detective Joe Murray came up. We all then went off toward came up. We all then went on the the river to search for the negro. searched three or four houses on Market and Bay streets, but could not get on the track of Wiggins. We were about to give it up and were standing on the corner of Mills and Market streets when Lieutenant Desmond drove up. We were told that Steve Jackson married Wiggins's sister and she was harboring her brother. We went back to the corner of McKinne and Market streets to a store kept by a negro woman. We asked the woman if she knew where Steve Jackson lived. She said there was a family of Jacksons who lived above there. Lieutenant Desmond told us to go ahead and search the house which was pointed out to us and see if we could find anything about it.

"We went to the house and went to the front door. Detective Murray preceded me. When I got to the middle room I met Harriet Jackson and asked her what she was doing there. She used to live out by the Knoxville depot. Harriet said she had moved there a short while before. By that time Murray had gotten in the back yard and I was at the rear door. Murray called to me and said there was a negro in the outhouse. He told me to go to the front door and he ran around to the back door. I heard a pistol shot which I thought was ired inside the hor red inside the house.
"I tried to break in the door at which I was standing, but could not, so I ran to join Murray. As I turned the corner of the house I met Murray. He had his hands up to his face. Blood was spurting from his mouth and nose. He cried out to me, 'Tom, I am ruined for life.' I said, 'yes, I see you are,' and walked past him. When reached the steps I saw the back door open about a foot wide. A negro poked his arm out, took deliberate aim, and fired at me. The ball struck me on the nose and cut out my left eye. While dazed, I shot at the negro, but don't know where the bullet struck. I was shot with a 32-calibe

On the cross-examination Stringer said he did not know who fired the first shot, Mr. Murray or the negro, and he did not know whether the negro fired any other shot than the one fired at him. Lieutenant Desmond corroborated String er's statement. Edward New swore he saw Wiggins fire the shot that killed Davis.

Mr. Ed Gleason, who captured Wiggins after the shooting, swore that the negro shot at Policeman Wrenn before the officer fired.

This afternoon, after the state closed the defense put up Joe Cunningham, a young white man, who swore that Wrenn shot at Wiggins before Wiggins shot at Wrenn on the river bank. Mr. Wallace Wheeles swore that Policeman Wrenn told wheeles swore that Policetan Wienis to the him he fired two shots at Wiggins as he was running down the river bank. At 7 o'clock the court adjourned until tomorrow morning.

NO ST. VALENTINE'S BALL.

Augusta's Swell Club Disbands Account of Hard Times. Augusta, Ga., January 9.—(Special.)—The t. Valentine Society is a thing of the past—a memory only. The final decision was made at the meeting of the Commercial Club held tonight, and, though there was a strong effort on the part of a great many to hold the society together and to give a ball this year, it was disbanded. Great regret is felt all over the city that the organization with a successful record of thirteen years should be numbered with the things of the past. It is claimed that the commercial depression is the reason that the ball will not be given this year. It is, therefore, hoped that when times improve the society may be rehabilitated and continue its annual balls. past-a memory only. The final decision was continue its annual balls.

Compulsory Education.

Educational experts are devising ways and means to enforce the compulsory education law here. Ine city superintendent in a forthcoming report will recommend the establishment of truant schools and also the creation of a farm school in the annexed district, where incorrigibles should be sent rather than to an institution. He would have them employed in farm labor, taught to make their own clothes and shoes and given some trade, making the school nearly self-supporting and equipping the boys with a means to make a living. Parents and guardians who fail to have their children or wards attend school as required may be fined $5 for the first offense and for each subsequent offense fined $50 and imprisoned thirty days. A Merciful Employer.

William Moil, twenty-three years old, of No. 12 Ellery street, Williamsburg, confessed, in the Lee avenue police court, yester, day, that he had stelen a gold wedding ring every working day for the last eight years from his employer, J. R. Woods, a wedding from his employer, J. R. Woods. ring manufacturer, of No. 1,323 Atlantic avenue, Ercoklyn. Mr. Woods, instead of desiring to prosecute the young man, blames kimself for not having been more careful to avoid leaving temptation open to one of his employes, and pleaded in Moll's behalf for mercy.

Moll walked into the Vernen avenue station house last Saturday night and told Sergeant Ganz that he had been stealing, but as he was drunk, the police believed he was laboring under a delusion, so they lock-ed him up and notified Mr. Woods to be in court yesterday morning. The police learn-ed from Moll where two of the rings he had stolen were pawned, and redeemed them. and on this evidence the prisoner was ar-raigned to answer a charge of petty lar-

I did not want to steal, but I could not help it. and I could not stop drinking, so I went to the police and confessed."

"I have great sympathy for this boy," said Mr. Woods. "He came to work for me when he was fifteen years old. Several of his relatives have been in my employ for several years more. We are all like members of one family in the shop. As I make $500,000 worth of rings a year, the number this boy has stolen does not amount to much. I feel worse about leaving an opening for him to steal than I do about the loss of the rings. I do not blame anybody but myself for this. It was my duty to weigh those returned rings, and had I no

"What do you consider should be done with him?" asked Justice Goetting.

"Well, I suppose he should go to work as a car driver or something like that, where there would be nothing he could steal. I believe he will reform."
"But," said the astonished justice, "do you not believe he should be punished for what he has done?"
"I do not believe it would do any good. I do not want him punished as I feet the I. I do not want him punished as I feet the I. I do not want him punished, as I feel that I am to blame. I will take the liberty of

An Elevated Garden. Elevated air gardens for lower New York. This is the latest suggestion evolved from the agitation in favor of small breathing spots for the poor of the congested tensment districts. Edwin A. Curley is the originator of the idea. Here's a brief outline of how and where he would test it: He would erect the first one over the Baxter street plaza. It is on Canal street, a few blocks from Broadway, on the Bowery side. Here notorious Baxter crosses the Broadway end of the plaza, miserable Mulberry crosses the narrow end, then comes motley Mott, with Bayard, White, Hester and Howard close by. This places the hanging park right in the heart of the great eastside slum. Probably in no other part of the world can there be seen so much that is typical of the slums in so short at time as at the spot designated. Upon a steel framework the designer would place a floor space of more than an acre Large playrooms for use in bad weather are a feature. The balustrade would be are a feature. The balustrade would be vine-clad, and plants, flowers and bowers would give to the asphalt a park-like aspect. Kindergartens, libraries, reading rooms, male and female clubrooms, bathrooms, etc., are set down in the plans. In arguing in favor of the scheme, its projector says an elevated garden would not cost the city one-tenth as much as its smallest park; that it would be healthier for feeble women and sick children; would be avail-able at all seasons; and would bring in close communion those who are now almost totally deprived of contact with their fellows. Without closely figuring out the cost of creation or maintenance, the origin ator contends that it would not become ator contends that it would not become a burden upon the taxpayers, but, instead, would soon be regarded as a blessing. If you should ever come here and take a peep at the place picked out for the proposed experiment, you would more than likely agree with him. As there's lots of reform here just now, the elevated garden for the poor may be taken more seriously than its originator imagines."

than its originator imagines.' The Anti-Cigarette League is preparing to hold a convention here. Under the auspices of School Commissioner Hubbell, this league was formed a year ago among the public school boys. It has 40,000 members, branches having been established in all the ninety-five grammar schools in the city and in many of the primaries. As there is no central organization, the pro posed convention will be asked to create one. The league is of the voluntary and self-governing sort. The boys pledge themselves to give up smoking cigarettes unti they are twenty-one, and to influence other boys to do the same. A button is the badge present and make an address.

to drop any member from the rolls who violates his pledge. A member so dropped may be restored after six months' probation, but is ineligible after a second offense. The organizer of the league states that a great majority of the boys stand by their pledgis, as they consider it a dis-grace to lose their button. All the evils attendant upon the enervating vice of cigarette smoking are forcibly pointed out in set talks to the scholars, and the result has been a higher standard of manliness among them. It's a good idea to shove along.

Recorder Goff.

When Recorder Goff was installed in of-fice yesterday he said he was proud to succeed to the bench that had been occufice yesterday he said he was proud to succeed to the bench that had been occupied by Varick, Livingston, Kent and Smyth—all distinguished men. The members of the bar, the recorder said, should be prompted to the highest plane in the profession when it was recalled that Livingston, Jay, Hamflton, Burr, O'Conor and Van Buren had practiced in the court of general ressions. Then he added:

"It is a lamentable thing for us to be told that the profession of the law is retrograding and not advancing, and that the high standard set by the men whose names I have mentioned is not being kept up by the practitioners of today. It is said that cutning has given place to skill, and that instead of the noble profession of the law being the occupation of the learned and eloquent and conscientious, it has become a trade, pursued by the unning and artful instead of the skillful and the learned. "Indeed, it has been sworn to that it is a common practice in the prisons of this city for wardens and keepers to have and enter into collusive agreements with attorneys to procure them cilents and receive therefor part of the fees. There are no words in the English language sufficiently strong to condemn such a proceeding; it is worse than highway robbery. And the man who calls himself a lawyer who enters into such corrupt and collusive agreements is not worthy of the dignity of the name, and he degrades an ancient and honorable profession.

"Gentlemen, my purpose throughout my whole course of judicial life on this bench will be to aid in every possible manner the members of the bar in practicing in this court to elevate the tone, to inspire the jurposes and to make the profession of the law respected in this court as it should be in ail courts of judicial life on this bench will be to aid in every possible manner the members of the bar in practicing in this court to elevate the tone, to inspire the jurposes and to make the profession of the law respected in this court as it should be in ail courts of judicial life to this bench will be

ATLANTA, GA., January 10, 1895.

Mr. Watterson on the Situation. Editor Henry Watterson contributes a three-column article to the editorial department of The Courier-Journal on "St. Jackson's Day." It is an eloquently written article, but, as very frequently happens when eloquence is given the right of way, is more satisfying in style than in substance. Editor Watterson institutes a com parison between President Jackson and President Cleveland and, in his picturesque way, points out the difference between the two men-the one a democrat and a party man at all hazards, and the other a democrat but anything else but a party man. All this is well enough for desultory reading, but it seems to us to be somewhat in the air-aside from the purpose, as it were. No one needs to be told that Mr. Cleveland' is not an Andrew Jackson, nor is it profitable to surmise how solid and triumphant the party would be if it had an Andrew Jackon at the head of affairs.

The really serious thing to be considered is that the democratic party, in the absence of an Andrew Jackson, is "in the soup," as the boys say. The main thing is how to get it out. Editor Watterson approaches this problem cautiously. He walks around it with his head in the air and his wing down-as a turkey gobbler does when he has discovered a snake in the bushes.

But, after all, his solution is very sim ple-let the party regard the platform as promissory note to be redeemed on maturity. This is good as far as it goes. But as the party leaders, yielding administration, have repudiated the only promissory note that the party has been in a position to redeem during the past thirty-five years, how will the leaders get the confidence of the people again? Even Mr. Watterson is disposed to admit-contrary to his daily teachings from 1877 to 1885-that the party did right to repudiate the silver pledge; and, contrary to all ideas of Jacksonian democracy, is anxious to see the control of the people's money placed in the hands of the national banks. We advise Mr. Watterson to hunt up the record of the democratic party since the war. It opposed the resumption act; it opposed the retirement of the greenbacks; it voted for the free coinage silver at every opportunity; and it has consistently opposed national banks. Now, then, if it proposes to repudiate this record, what will happen to it?

A Voice from the West.

Ex-Governor Boies comes late to the banquet of democratic wreck and ruin, but he comes with his hands in the air and his tongue running like a flutter mill. He declares that nothing but the coinage of both gold and silver as the fundamental money of the country can save the party and hold it together.

The cry has a familiar sound, but is the man who makes it the same Boies who, in his anxiety to be a candidate for vice president on the Cleveland ticket. swallowed his silver views and caused the state convention of Iowa to degrade itself by going before the peoble on a platform squinting toward goldbuggery?

If he is the same Boies we have a vivid remembrance of his brief career. In 1890, standing firmly for the free and unlimited comage of silver, he rallied to his support a large majority of the democratic voters of Iowa, and wrested that state for the first time in many years from republican control. Then he grew ambitious. He saw the Cleveland boom, and he wanted to take advantage of it. He slipped away from the free coinage, and tried to get something of a tailholt on the goldbug scheme. He succeeded in seizing goldbuggery by the tail. He also succeeded in disgusting the honest voters of his state, so that Iowa returned to the republican column. But he failed to be nominated for vice presi

We are not complaining about Mr. Boies As an individual he is responsi ble only to his own conscience for his mental wabblings. But how much bet-ter for him, and for his party, and for the people, if he had remained true to his convictions! Today, Boies would be the great democratic leader of the west and his name would be the rallying cry of the party all over the country. As it is, he cuts a very small figure. He had entirely disappeared from view until on the occasion of the celebration of Jackson day in Omaha, Neb., he comes to the front as an advocate of the free coinage of silver, returning to his old convictions and giving utterance to them with something like his termination to return to the ranks of nuine democracy, but we cannot help eminding him that the party and the country would be in a prosperous condition today if such men as he had had the foresight and the courage to stand firmly by honest democratic doctrines instead of allowing themselves to be led astray by the goldbugs who were hiding their selfish designs behind the banner of Clevelandism.

Mr. Boles is late in returning to true democratic principles, but, we trust, not too late. It is true that the democratic party, so far as its official manifestations in Washington are concerned, is in state of collapse. It cannot legislate; it cannot even hold a caucus. But that is because the men who were selected to redeem the democratic pledges have proved themselves to be traitors to their obligations, allowing themselves either to be bought by federal patronage or to be overwhelmed by arguments in behalf of the money power.

The confusion into which the party has been thrown-the degradation the has been brought upon it-is due to the attitude of men who, knowing the truth, knowing the desires of the people, knowing that the platform ple afforded an efficient remedy for the trouble and distress of the hour, have, nevertheless, permitted themselves to be silenced and overawed by what is known as Clevelandism.

The cuckoos have charged The Constitution with abusing Mr. Cleveland, the grounds for this charge being the fact that we have not hesitated to criticise the policy of the president whenever that policy ran contrary to the solemn obligations that the party took upon its. If when it accepted office at the hands of the people. But we are free to say that Mr. Cleveland is innocence itself compared with those congressmen who have allowed themselves to be bought or bulldozed by him or by those who represent an undemocratic financial policy, or who are interested in swelling the profits which accrue to the money sharks when the people are robbed by contracting the money volume and mak ing money dearer as compared with the Congressman Sibley, of Pennsylvania refers with refreshing frankness to the condition of affairs in the house-to the members who have been purchased by patronage or bulldozed by the manifes tations of official influence. But outside of congress there is a large gang of in fluential men who have been slobbering over Mr. Cleveland and endorsing his anti-democratic and ruinous financia policy in the hope that some crumb of federal patronage would fall their way These men, by their attitude and ex ample have done as much to deceive congressmen and wreck the democratic party as any element in the party. We should think that the time ha now arrived when the most selfish and deprayed office seeker to be found in the country would see and understand that the democratic party is more importan to the people than any individual-and that the redemption of the democratic pledges is absolutely essential to the future harmony and unity of the party The man who does not see this is neither sensible nor patriotic.

Newspaper Literature.

The last great daily newspaper which has always held out against publishing fiction in its columns now yields to the pressure of the popular taste and announces that it will soon run a seria story in its weekly edition.

Speaking of this change in the charac er of The London Times's reading mater, Mr. Harold Frederic says that "with the Thunderer dallying in fiction it is felt that almost anything can happen. In recent years the newspapers have adopted many of the literary features of the magazines, and they continue to broaden their field. If a daily paper should now devote itself entirely to matters of fact, politics, financial statistics, editorials, etc., it would have a limited circulation, and the solid men who took it would have to take other papers for the benefit of their wives daughters and sons. The London paper has done wisely in yielding to the spirit of the age. Millions of people look to their newspapers for literature, science and art, as well as news, and their tastes must be consulted. The dailies in France, England and the United States which have the largest circulation all print stories, and they make it a point to get the bright est fiction at any cost. The future Dickens and Thackeray will turn their backs on the magazines and print their stories in the newspapers, because this course

How much is annually paid to citizens of foreign countries for interest, dividends rents and profits on investments in the United States? Will the public interest be best promoted by an increase or reduction of this annual payment? How would you bring about the change you favor?

In reply The Sun has this to say: We don't know and we don't care partic ularly. The only change we would wish for would be to pay all our debts in full just as soon as we have promised to pay them. The great thing is to keep our engagements; and, if we have made any silly ones. uestion on which we do not now any opinion, to take care and not

What our contemporary says about paying debts in full when they are due, and keeping our engagements, is all right, but when the creditor classes in lulge in this sort of talk they know that under our present financial system they in reality collect more than is due them. Under the gold standard the purchasing power of a dollar is constantly increasing, and when we pay debt contracted a few years ago we practically pay twice as much as we

But the debtor classes are crushed by the oppressive system which doubles the amount of their indebtedness and makes it more difficult for them to keer their engagements to the letter. It is just as wrong to discriminate against debtors as it would be to discriminate against creditors. Both classes have rights that should be respected, and sideration it is the debtors, because 90 per cent of the world's business is done on credit, and it is the height of injus tice to legislate in the interest of the

State Banks Again.

The Richmond Times in the course of reply to a correspondent who opposes its state bank theories makes the point that the present loss of confidence has occurred under a national currency good in all parts of the country, and declares that it would not have happened with a state bank currency.

The Times says that its correspondent is altogether wrong in his notion that if we had a state bank currency every nan who got one of its notes would run to the bank to have it redeemed in gold If the Richmond banks should issue notes the people of that city would no convert them into gold. The notes would be received with as much confidence as people now have in the certified checks of those banks. Nor would the bankers lose all their prudence and issue too much currency. They did not do it before the war. The record of thirty years shows that during twentythree years of that period the Richmond banks had a circulation amounting to less than their capital, which was pledged for its redemption, and during the other seven years their circulation was not much in excess of their capital. The Times says:

Consequently Mr. Moore's wholesale corresquently Mr. Moore's wholesale grocer would never think of going with the state bank's note to its counter and asking for gold for it. He would take it to his own bank along with his other receipts during the day and deposit it, and that bank uld pay it out again to the next person who came along and wanted curren If Mr. Moore will take his mind off of s country he will find that from 1837 down to the war the paper currency of this country was state bank notes only. He will also find that they made a mos the money centers and stayed at home, where it was wanted. He will find, also, that under that system there were no very rich men, but that prosperity was diffused gen-erally among the people, and all were well

The Richmond paper does not exaggerate the blessings of a local currency. The only trouble that grew out of it was in some of the western states which were overboomed by speculators. The so-called wild cat banks were in the west. In the better regulated eastern states they never existed.

The Truth About Port Arthur.

The special correspondents of the leading London papers have verified The New York World's story of the massacre of the Chinese at Port Arthur by the Japanese.

It seems that just before the Japanese entered the town they saw hanging on the trees the bodies of a dozen of their countrymen who had been taken prisoners and butchered by the Chinese These poor fellows had been barbarously mutilated, and the spectacle excited the Japanese to such a pitch of frenzy that they rushed into the town and murdered the non-combatants right and left. The English correspondents looked into some of the houses and saw the floors cov ered with dead men and women Unarmed citizens were shot and hacked in the most brutal fashion, and neither age por sex was spared. Even the dogs and cats in the streets were killed by the invaders. A London Times correspond-

The corpses of women, children and men were strewn in the streets in hundreds, perthousands, for v with heads hacked, cut crosswise of split lengthwise, some ripped open, not by chance, but with careful precision down and across disemboweled and with occasionally a dagger or bay thrust into the lower part of the trunk

I saw a junk stranded on the beach filled with fugitives of both sexes and all ages struck by volley arter volley, until—I can say no more of the awful sights of those four days. Why repeat them all in painful detail? The American consul general at Yokohama has sent a private report to Sec retary Gresham in which he says that the Japanese are children as regards civilization, and that they have imitated fruits of civilization without their ante cedent metal and moral growth. He declares that they are utterly incapable of grasping the fundamental principles of law as understood in highly civilized

It is a pity, but our consul general is probably right. The Japanese have been civilized too rapidly. They have borrowed the arts of civilization without becoming imbued with its spirit. And yet they had great provocation. Port Arthur massacre was no worse than the conduct of the Chinese has been.

Puritan and Cavalier. About the time Henry Watterson was discussing the Puritan and the Cavalier before the New England Society of New York, John S. Wise, of Virginia, was doing the same thing before the Congregational Club of Chicago. Mr. Watterson's address was unique. The speaker declared that he was no Cavalier, but only a plain Scotch-Irishman, and "one of those southerners who ate no fire in the green leaf and no dirt in the brown," Mr. Watterson thought that the Puritans and the Cavaliers were very much mixed. He said:

Turning to the Encyclopaedia of American Biography, I find that Webster had all the vices that are supposed to nave signalized the Cavalier, and Calhoun all the virtues that are claimed for the Puritan. During twenty years three statesmen of Puritan origin were chosen party leaders of Cavalier Mississippi—Robert J. Walker, born and reared in Pennsylvania; John A. Quitman, born and reared in New York, and Sargent S. Prentiss, born and reared in the good old state of Maine. That sturdy Puritan. John Slidell, never saw Louisiana until tan, John Slidell, never saw Louisiana until lege—but sprung from New England ances-tors. Albert Sidney Johnston, the most re-splendent of modern Cavallers—from trig to toe a type of the species—the very rose and expectancy of the young confederacy— did not have a drop of southern blood in his veins—yankee on both sides of the house, though born in Kentucky a little while after his father and mother arrived there from Connecticut. If Custer was not a Cavalier, Rupert was a Puritan. And Sherwood and Wadsworth, and Kearney and McPherson, and their dashing companions and followers. The one typical Puritan soldier of the war-mark youl-was a southern and not a northern soldier-Stonewall Jackson, of the Virginia line. And, if we should care to pursue the subject further back, what about Ethan Alsubject further back, what about Ethan Al len and John Stark and Mad Anthony Wayne. Cavaliers each and every one! Indeed, from Israel Putnam to Buffalo Bill, seems to me the Puritans have had much best of it in turning out Cavaliers the least said about the Puritan and the

To sum it all up, he thought that both types were good enough and bad enough and he was glad that they were gone. Then, he wound up with an eloquent appeal for Americanism. In Chicago Mr. Wise tackled the sub ject on a somewhat different line. He said that he had the blood of both Puritan and Cavalier in his veins, but while he believed that both had done much to build up America he did not believe that either had done as much as it claimed. because our civilization is necessarily composite. Like Mr. Watterson, he had something to say about the Scotch-Irish He said, in part:

The claim that our country is indebted o the so-called Cavalier or so-called Puri-an element for one or another, or all of the landmarks, principles and institution above enumerated, is the staple of many utterances of men in both section The little theater is which the New Eng the southern settlements strutted their brie day upon the stage was bounded on the west by the Blue Ridge mountains. It is but a nayow ribbon on the map. It was never, ugtil the coming of a race more sturdy than Cavaller or Puritan that the mountains were crossed and the star of empire started westward. There came new race to America—a race as different from the English Puritan or Pilgrim as the lion is from the ox—a race as different from the English Cavaller as was John Know from Walter Raleigh. From 1710 to 1750 s vast multitude of Scotch-Irishmen poured into the American colonies.

Although this race of people came to Cavalier or Puritan, seven out of twenty-three presidents have been Scotch-Irishmen Jackson, Polk, Taylor, Pierce, Buchanan, Johnson and Arthur. Three men have been Scotch—Monroe, Grant and Hayes; two Dutch—Van Buren and Fillmore; one was Welsh-Jefferson. Three have been so-calle Cavaller English-Washington, W. H. Har-rison and Tyler; two were of Puritan de-scent—the two Adamses. Of the remaining five Madison's and Lincoln's antecendents are unknown to me; Garfield was a mixtur of English, Weish and Huguenot; Cleveland, a cross between Scotch-Irish Presbyterian and Irish, and Benjamin Harrison a cross between Cavaller and Puritan. He gave neither the Puritans nor the Cavaliers credit for framing the declaration of independence and the constitu tion, but claimed those documents as the joint production of Puritan and Cavalier, Dutch, Huguenot and Scotch-Irish, all working for a common end. In reply to Rev. Dr. Cave's famous speech in which he declared that Appomattox witnessed the triumph of Puritanism over the Cavaliers, Mr. Wise said:

As a confederate soldier, as one in whose veins runs the blood of the Cavalier blood of Virginia, if there be any such; as an American citizen who loves the truth of history; as a layman protesting against the lack of charity in every utterance of one who is supposed to represent "faith, hope and charity." How much of the English Cavalier is found in the Calhouns, the Pickens, the Toombs, the Benjamins, and the Slidella? When men like the Rev. Mr. Cave, a nonsectarian to idealize the great struggle for and convert it into one between Cavaller and Puritan, let them remember that in stead of the Puritanism or the Cromwell type being confined to the northern side, there never has, perhaps, been since the days of Cromwell and his Ironsides another leader and his following as much like Cromwell and his men, as the Scotch-Irish Purl-tan Stonewall Jackson and his Presbyterian division from the valley of Virginia In one thing Mr. Wise and Mr. Wat terson are both agreed. They admit that the Puritans and the Cavaliers are all dead. They might have gone fur ther and said that we never had very many of either in this country. Many man masquerades as the descendant of a Puritan or a Cavaller, when in fact he came from some other stock. But it makes very little difference. What we want now is the patriotic American type of today.

Let Mr. Boles ge to work and consolidate the democrats of the west on the free coinage of silver. The man who will begin this work now and carry it out earnestly and consistently will be made president.

There is no hope for the democratic party in 1896 unless it inscribes on its banne "The free, unlimited and independent coinage of silver." That issue will win.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Says The Chicago Times: "Colonel W. C. P. Breckinridge is falling to earn a livelihood as a public lecturer. Miss Made-line Pollard has been turned out of every position she has secured as soon as her identity was discovered. The press of the country seems inclined to hail these facts as most glorious illustrations of the virtue of the people. A Brooklyn man writes to The New York World as follows: "What hope is there for democratic success hereafter it such men as Cleveland and Hill are to combine and dominate the party? I can answer my own question: There will be none. For both these men are absolutely controlled by direct or indirect plutocratic influences. Mr. Cleveland has no longer a vestige of democracy. In growing suddenly rich by the help of the millionaires of his kitchen cabinet, he has sacrificed everything which gave him common ground with kitchen cabinet, he has sacrinced everything which gave him common ground with the people. He is a tory in every idea. Alexander Hamilton was more of a democrat than he is. As for Hill, he has not the remotest idea of what democracy means. He succeeds merely because he is not ashamed to get down to the level of the plain people, but after having won through their agency he continually betared. through their agency he continu trays them. I have watched both these men for ten years from the standpoint of a democrat who knows what American democracy means and what it requires for ss. #### THE DEMOCRATIC CAUCUS.

New York Times: A majority of the cau voted that the impossible substitu cus has voted that the impossible substitute for the still more impossible Carlisle banking bill ought to pass. But only eighty-one democrats voted for Mr. Crisp's resolution-barely one-third of the party strength in the house. Such a test will hardly serve for guidance. It is in no sense controlling. Still, the endorsement of Mr. Carlisle's plan involves the admission that the green-backs must be retired. There is a certain encouragement in the appearance both in the house debates and in the caucus action of this one conception that has long been of this one conception that has long been conspicuously absent there—the conception of the legal tender notes as evidences of indebtedness and nothing else.

New York'World: The financial and bu ness situation is one that peremptorily de-mands legislation at this session, for the re-lief of the treasury. If there is no such legislation the democratic party must an-swer to the people for the neglect. Yet the outcome of the caucus of the democrats in the house of representatives yesterday was lame and impotent. The caucus began by proclaiming its own want of authority. It announced itself as merely advisory. and rejected a proposal that it should make its decrees authoritative.

It will no doubt lead to increased trade with this section from all the others, and the great north and west will be astonished to see what a vast market the south affords for purchase and investment. The city council met tonight to receive the

to be quite a disappointment to council and the spectators present, as it consisted of no report at all. For the pfist few days this committee has had the heads of all before it, with a view of finding some means by which to reduce the expenses of the city government. It appears now that the salaries and number of officials movement were, a few weeks since, begging the people of Columbus to ratify an ordi-nance authorizing the issuance of $350,000 worth of bonds with which to build a new system of waterworks.

TWO NEW BRIDGES.

idge Committee Will Recommend the Alabama Street Bridge

ID A NEW BRIDGE ON BROAD STREET

e Committee Meets for the First Time Tomorrow.

OD WORDS FROM CHAIRMAN BELL e Sentiment in Favor of the Two Bridges

Overwhelming-The Council Is Unanimous.

Chairman Bell and Messrs, Welch, of e fifth, and Welch, of the second, who mpose the bridge committee of the counof 1895, will hold a meeting tomorrow and that meeting will result in the adncement of the proposed Alabama street dge and the rebuilding of the Broad bridge, both of which the members the general council and Mayor King demust be done this year.

he bridge committee as named by Mayor ng is one of the best combinations that partment has had since the construction the Forsyth street bridge under the direcof Mr. Hirsch and Mr. Turner, who re chairmen of that committee during building of the bridge. Mr. Bell, man of the committee, is one of the est progressive, energetic and Atlanta ost progressive, energetic and Atlanta ring men the city has, and it will be his de to see the two bridges at least started fore the year is out. The Messrs. Welch, e from the second and the other from the th, are both known as men who do not ger when they have work in hand, and will be their aim to go by the chairman the committee if they can in advancing a work.

I have been," said Mr. Bell yesterday, I have been," said Mr. Bell yesterday, udying the plans of the Alabama street dge now on file in the city engineer's lee. There are, I find, quite a number ere, and we will have hard work to set just what we want. One of the plans, wever, will give us a bridge for about a nered thousand dollars, or a little less, that will more than likely be the one dred thousand dollars, or a the one that will more than likely be the one that will select. So far the committee has will select. So far the committee has no meeting, but I have had talks with no meeting, but I have had take with of my associates on the committee they, like I, are strongly in favor of bridge. In fact, all three of us want bridge and we want it so much we have the work started before the year ut. It may be that we will not be able emplete it, but that will be due to the that we haven't the money on hand emplete it, but that will be due to the it that we haven't the money on hand d to no other reason. The financial con-tion of the city and the fact that we il have to be mighty liberal during the position, will cause us all to be careful out every dollar we turn loose. Still, I a sure that we will be able to find money gin the work and maybe give it a ty good shove during the year. I that the members of the committee just as anxious for the bridge as I Mayor King wants to see it go up

I think it is our duty to do all we to make his administration one of hich we will all be proud.

"Now the Broad street bridge has been lied about a good deal, and I have taken lked about a good deal, and I have taken casion to confer with the city engineer. Informed Mayor King in a letter that he bridge was not safe and asked for the allding of a new one. The bridge there ill cost something like $35,000 and we must if. The indications are that we will see a start on that bridge before the snows the winter are gone. The truth is, someting must be done. If the bridge is dantous then it should not be allowed to and any longer than a new one can go. The street railroad company is bound . The street railroad company is bound pay something like $5,000 towards the pay something like 5,000 towards the instruction of a new one. The bridge ust be a good one, one that will last forer, at least as long as the Forsyth street dige, which is said to be the finest bridge the south. I am satisfied that we can ture a contract by which we can pay for the bridge in two, three or four years. If at can be done the condition of the city easury will cut no ice in the case. By a special act of the legislature it is owed the city to make a contract for a kindama street bridge so that the pay-

The members of the committee is come together tomorrow and then we in figure out the amount of money we ust have for the work and ask the finance amplitee for it. MODERN DICK TURPIN.

Two Up-to-Date Highwaymen Get Ten

Years in the Penitentiary. Will Sexton and Sanford Crewes, charged with highway robbery, put on trial for that offense yesterday morning and convicted, were sentenced by Judge Richard Clark to serve ten years each in the per itentiary.

The attorneys for the young men at once would be made and requested that a bond be set. This bond was placed at $2,000 each. It is hardly likely that either of them will be able to give the bond for several days yet.

The various adventures credited to Dick Turpin are rivaled by the shrewdness shown by these two alleged modern highwaymen-these Turpinites.

It was in the fall of last year that farmer named J. T. Brooks came to Atlanta from a neighboring county. Brooks came into the city with a lot of farm stuff to dispose of, and he soon had a large roll of money in his pocket. He met a very clever young man named Sanford Crewes and together the two waded into the city to investigate its shades and lights.

The younger man was well acquainted with the dark nooks and more or less disreputable corners, and Brooks was an apt pupil. Together they wandered about on streets that are seldom frequented save by evil doers. From one place the couple went to another. At a house where the younger man seemed well acquainted Brooks became reckless and exhibited his roll of money.

It was not long before Crewes retired from the crowd. When he returned he was accompanied by Will Sexton. He introduced Sexton and Brooks and quickly left. It was not long before Brooks and his companion, Sexton, left also. Brooks stated that he was going to the home of a rela-tive to spend the night. Sexton suggested that he was going in the same direction. The two walked along until a vacant lot was reached, so it was alleged. Sexton assured Brooks that it was much shorter to go through the lot. Brooks assented. Just as they were in the center they were confronted by a man who pointed a dangerous looking pistol at them and ordered them to "up hands all." Sexton obeyed, and advised Brooks to do the same. But Brooks had his opinion on such mat-ters. He was not to be frightened into handing over his roll of hard-earned money. He suggested that they were two to one and that it was an easy matter for them to whip their would-be robber.

Sexton did not agree with this, but advised Brooks to hold up his hands. Brooks the hold up his hands.

still refused, according to the charge, and the highwayman continued his threats. Brooks then advanced upon the highway-man, who proved to be Crewes, and was about to grapple with him when he was seized from behind by Sexton and thrown to the ground.

It was then an easy matter for the two to relieve Brooks of his money, and this they quickly did. As soon as Brooks could get to the police station he notified the officers what had occurred and the arrest of his assailants followed. Both claim that they are innocent of any crime

COL. ROBERTSON TO GO

He Will Probably Represent the Exposition in Cincinnati.

PRESIDENT COLLIER HAS INVITED HIM

The Manufacturers of the United States to Meet in the Queen City January 23d. Colonel James W. Robertson, of Haber-sham county, has been invited to represent the Atlanta exposition at the national convention of manufacturers to be held in Cincinnati, January 22d. As Colonel Robertson is known to be heartily in touch with the spirit of the convention, it is more than likely that he will accept, in which event he will make a valuable representative of the exposition enterprise. President Collier wrote to Colonel Rob-erison yesterday requesting him to attend the convention for the exposition, and set-ting forth the purposes of the convention. As is widely known, the convention is the direct growth of the Atlanta exposition idea, and its purpose is to bring about closer trade relations between the United States and foreign countries, particularly those south of us. The encouragement of trade relations between the south and the South American countries is one of the prime purposes of the Atlanta exposition, and the agitation of this idea by the pro-moters of this enterprise, while they were before congress seeking a governmental appropriation called national attention to the importance of the movement

The matter was worked up through the energy and activity of an Atlanta man, Mr. Martin, editor of Dixie, and now the convention promises to be one of the most important that has been held in a number of years. Manufacturers from every section of the country are to be present, and the most extensive preparations for their entertainment are being made. One of the handsomest cards of invita-tion ever gotten out has been sent to the manufacturers of the country, and the responses have been general and enthusiastic. The invitations are elegantly engraved and set for the purpose of the meeting. The committee on invitation and entertainment consists of such well-known and representative manufacturers as A. Proctor, president of the Proctor & Gamble Company; Thomas P. Egan, president of the J. A. Fay & Egan Company; Edward C. Hall, president of the 'Hall-Marvin Safe Company; Charles Davis, president of the Lodge-Davis Company; Robert Laidlaw, president of the Laidlaw-Dunn-Gordon Company; James E. Moonty, president of the American Oak Leather Company; H. M. Lane, president of the Lane & Bodley Company.

This committee issued the following address, attached to which is the programme of the convention: A. Proctor, president of the Proctor & of the convention: "The manufacturers of Cincinnati believe that the prosperity of the manufac-turing interests of the entire country may be best promoted by concerted action, and to that end suggest that a convention of

WANT UNCLE SAM'S CONSENT. Hawati Wants to Lease an Island to Great Britain.

Washington, January 9.—The president sent to congress today some correspondence on Hawaiian affairs, with the following message of transmittal:

"To the Senate and House of Representatives—I submit herewith certain dispatches

"To the Senate and House of Representatives—I submit herewith certain dispatches from our minister at Hawali and the documents which accompanied the same.

"They disclose the fact that the Hawalian government desires to lease to Great Britain one of the uninhabited islands belonging to Hawali as a station for a submarine telegraph cable, to be laid from Canada to Australia, with a connection between the island leased and Honolulu. Both the Hawalian government and the representatives of Great Britain in the negotiation concede that the proposed lease cannot be effected without the consent of the United States for the reason that, in our reciprocity treaty with the king of Hawali, he agreed that as long as said treaty remained in force he would not lease or otherwise dispose of, or create any lien upon any port, harbor or other territory in his dominion or grant any special privilege or right of use therein to any power, state or government.

"At the request of the Hawaiian government this subject is laid before the congress for its determination, upon the question of so modifying the treaty agreement above recited as to permit the proposed lease, as it will be seen that the correspondence, which is submitted between the spondence, which is submitted between the Hawaiian and British negotiators, negatives the existence on the part of the Hawaiian government of any suspicion of British unfriendliness or the fear of British aggression. The attention of the congress is directed to the following statement, contained in a communication addressed to the Hawaiian government by the representatives of Great Britain:

"We propose to inform the British government of your inquiry whether it would accept the sovereignty of Neckar island or some other uninhabited island would accept the sovereignty of Neckar island or some other uninhabited island on condition that no subsidy is required from you. As we explained, we have not felt at liberty to entertain that question ourselves, as we were definitely instructed not to ask for the sovereignty of any island, but only for a lease simply for the purpose of a cable."

"Some of the dispatches from our minister which were submitted not only refer to the project for leasing an uninhabited island, belonging to Hawaii, but contain interesting information concerning recent occurrences belonging to Hawaii, but contain interesting information concerning recent occurrences in that country and its political and social condition. This information is valuable, because it is based upon the observation and knowledge necessarily within the scope of the diplomatic duties, which are entrusted solely to the charge of this intelligent diplomatic officer representing the United States government at Hawaii. I hope the congress will see fit to grant the request of the Hawaiian government and that our concongress will see it to grant the request of the Hawalian government and that our con-sent to the proposed lease will be promptly accorded. It seems to me we ought not by a refusal of this request to stand in the way of the advantages to be gained by isolated Hawali through telegraphic com-munication with the rest of the world and especially in view of the fact that our especially in view of the fact that our own communication with that country would thereby be greatly improved without apparent detriment to any legitimate Amer-

New York, January 9.- During the great er part of the day operators at the stock the annual meetings of the United States Cordage and American Sugar Companies, and as a result speculation was at a very low ebb. The conditions, however, were firm, notwithstanding the strength of steriing exchange and the almost unanimous belief that a large amount of gold would be exported by Saturday's Europ-an steam-ers. When the decision of the house of representatives on Carlisle's currency bill became known, however, more confidence was displayed and a sharp advance fol lowed. The market for the first time in weeks showed some signs of life, and operators covered short contract, and were even disposed to buy for the long account. The American Sugar and United States Cordage meetings developed little of im-portance, and had no influence on the market. Chicago Gas was a conspicuous feature, rising 2 to 77. Rumors of the retirement of eastern capitalists and the election of Standard Oil representatives in their places were used again today to advance the stock. The failure of American Sugar officials to submit a statement of the condition of the concern did not have any influence whatever, and, as a matter of fact, the stock reached its top notch near the close. The Anthracite Coalers were strengthened by the decision of the Delaware and Hudson directors to maintain its regular dividend rate of 7 per cent for the year. The bulk of the business was in the Industrial issues, but the railroad group, while quiet, ruled firmer than of late. Stevens & Co.'s Cotton Letter.

By Private Wire to J. C. Knox, Manager. New York, January 9.—Liverpool again acted as the knight-errant of the bulls, for which they ought to be very thankful. That is to say, Liverpool was active and algher, and this set the bail rolling up hill, and the rise reached 5 to 6 points, part of which was lost, and the close was dull, but steady, with sales of 108,700. New Orleans advanced 9 to 19 points, compared with Monday's figures. Liverpool moved up 2½ to 3½ points on futures, with pot sales of 12,000 bales at an advance of 1-16d. The advance there was due, it is understood, to lessened offerings and the better state of trade at Manchester. A Rome, Ga., dispatch says that the bad weather prevailing in that section accounted for the small receipts. The public Manchester dispatches reported yarns quiet and arm, with cloths dull. Some southern advices predict a decreased acreage, and Virvinia dispatches maintained that the production of fertilizers during the coming season would show a large failing off. The semi-weekly interior movement as reported by New Orleans, shows receipts of 45,000 against 32,000 last year, and 39,000 in 1892. Port receipts were 32,704 against 19,798 this day last week and 20,300 last year. Total thus far for this week, 141,493 against 158,333 for the same time last week. Exports from the ports today were 26,500 bales, Augusta received 324 against 187 this day last year; Memphis, 1,137 against 1,041; St. Louis, 52 against 379, and Houston 4,672 against 2,397 last year. New Orleans expects tomorrow 7,000 to 9,000, against 13,885 last week and 6,946 last year. Some of the Galveston receipts are a the expense of the Houston stock. Augusta, Ga., reported rain Stevens & Co.'s Cotton Letter.

Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Cotton Letter. New York, January 9.—Summary Hub-bard Price & Co.'s cotton letter: A sharp demand from Manchester caused an adbard Price & Co.'s cotton letter: A sharp demand from Manchester caused an advance in Liverpool this morning which sustains the impression gathered from the returns of the business reported for last year that the trade conditions in England were decidedly more favorable than the public advices indicated. Reports were current this morning that Mr. Neill would reduce his estimate of the American crop, but this report was quickly denied, although it is well known in the trade that brokers supposed to represent Mr. Neill were buying in Liverpool during Christmas week. There is no change in the temper of the market, which remains bearish, believing that no advance can be predicted upon such a movement as is now reported, and that the reduction in the acreage will be less than usually expected. Our market closes steady at the best prices of the day, based upon the demand for covering purposes by the open interest and some little increase in the demand for investment.

Semi-Weekly Crop Movement.

New Orleans, La., January 9.—Semi-week-ly movement at thirteen leading interior towns, issued by the New Orleans cotton exchange, is as follows: Receipts, 45.763 bales against 32,132 last year; shipments, 61,727 bales against 42,735 last year. Stock, 461,730 bales against 368,496 last year.

Riordan & Co.'s Cotton Letter. New York, January 9.—(Special.)—A report that Neill had reduced his big crop estimate invigorated the Liverpool market tors and the market became more active and advanced.

There was large covering in Chicago Gasall day, and the price rose above 2 per cent. After the result of the meeting of the Spaar Refinery Company was an-

to support the advance. The buying power seemed very limited. The close was dull, but steady, with 5.71 bid for May Traders, while largely watching the movement of the crop, are talking a good deal about the chances of a material reduction in the

New York, January 9.—Cotton advanced 5 to 6 points and closed dull, but steady; sales of 108,700 bales. Liverpool advanced 1-16d on the spot and 2½ to 3½ points for future delivery, closing firm. New Orleans futures advanced today 9@10 points as compared with Monday's prices. Semiweekly New Orleans receipts at the interior towns was stated at 45,000, against 22,000 last year and 39,000 in 1892; shipments, 61,000, against 43,000 last year and 36,000 in 1892. Private Manchester cables were favorable. Port receipts today, 32,704, against 19,738 this day last week and 20,300 last year; thus far this week, 14,433, against 199,333 thus far last year. Exports from the ports today, 26,552. Rome, Ga., reported bad weather today. Spot cotton here was 1-16c higher. Sales of 158 bales for spinning; delivered on contracts, 1,100. Steadiness or firmness characterized the market here today. New Orleans sold 8,000 bales; Galveston and Savannah advanced 1-16c. Savannah sold 850 bales. New Orleans receipts tomorrow are estimated at 7,000 to 9,000, against 12,955 on the same day last week and 5,946 last year. Augusta received today 324, against 187 this day last year; Measure 1,137, against 1,417 st. Louis, 52, against 379, and Houston 4,672, against 2,397 last year. Stock market higher. The England news was the greatest factor of the day. They reported a diminishing of the product, stronger spot markets, expectations of a reduced acreage, the cheapness in price and local and southern European buying.

The Manchester Market.

The Manchester Market.

Manchester, January 9.—The Guardian, its commercial article, says:

"The tone of the market has been undecided and inquiry has been irregular. I Transactions have also been irregular. In certain sections there has been rather more business, where manufacturers have become tired of waiting for bids, and in some other sections engagements have often enabled sellers to be firm; but in few has the recently increased business been sufficient. There is much inquiry, but most of it has been unworkable. The recent business with China and Japan has been chiefly in nine-pound and heavier shirtings, but there is now some inquiry for lighter goods, such as sheetings, Mexicans, drills and bleaching clotrs. There has been a revival of demand from India for cloths after a long period of inactivity, and the lesser foreign markets have bought occasionally and moderately. There has been rather more inquiry for yarns, but in some cases concessions have been made in order to secure business."

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Decrease in the World's Visible

Does Not Affect Wheat Much.

Chicago, January 9.—Bradstreet's report of stocks, which showed a decrease in the world's visible supply, was the announcement that attracted the attention of the trade in wheat today. After it was received, values did not indicate that they were much affected by it. A momentary spasm of activity and weakness followed the circulation of the report, due to the fact that some had thought a heavier falling off should be shown, but the depression was succeeded by a ready return to previous prices. May wheat opened from 58657%c, sold between .84 and 57%c, closing at 57%c—%c under yesterday. Cash wheat was steady and unchanged.

The corn market was apparently largely oversold today, and a heavy feeling prevailed, except where wheat displayed a tendency to decline. There was not trade, however.

tendency to decline. There was not trade, however.

Near the close, a prominent local professional bought liberally, giving the final moments quite a firm tone. May corn opened at 47½c, sold between 47½ and 47½c, closing at 47½c, sold between 47½ and the humarket was firm. When business was dull, which was frequently, the disposition was to follow wheat. May onts closed ½c higher than yesterday. In the cash market prices were unchanged. Provisions—Packers sold product today, but not enough to cause a decline in prices. The bearish contingent are a little wary, and kept out of the market as sellers. Firmness in hogs at the yards assisted provisions to some extent, but business was uninteresting and dull. The close was 2½c higher than yesterday for May pork and May ribs, and 2½c higher for May lard.

Lamson Bros. & Co.'s Grain Leiter.

By Private Wire to J. C. Knox, Manager.
Chicago, January 9.—The wheat market attracted rather more interest than usual during the latter part of the session. Early there was some strength on a report that Bradstreet's would show a large decrease in the world's supply. Later this large decrease in the world's supply. Later this large decrease was changed to a small one. New York parties and some large speculators who are supposed to be in possession of this news a little in advance of the general trade, were free sellers, giving the market a very weak appearance. When the report finally did appear, showing less than a million decrease, instead of a decline, the market rallied on the appearance of a few buying orders. These were also accompanied by reports of the shipment of a car of wheat to Lisbon, with the probability that there would be a continued demand from that source. There was also an unusual inquiry from both England and the continent, the bids coming very closs, to an export basis. This was quite a deappointment of the short sellers, and looks more encouraging to holders, in view of all the bearish reports. Export clearances and the receipts at primary points are about equal—250,000 bushels. It is also reported that the stocks of four are becoming somewhat reduced, and the mills are generally starting up to their full capacity. The price has been well maintained, closing about the same as last night. Lamson Bros. & Co.'s Grain Leiter situation in coarse grains. The supply and demand seem to be about equal, and speculators are sort of waiting for something to turn up on which to ground their opinion of future prices.

Hog product, in view of the liberal receipts, showed rather unusual strength. Reports of hog cholera were more numerous. Packers who have liberal stocks in their houses, feel quite confident that they will realize good profits on their holdings when the usual spring demand begins.

WILL BEGIN TUESDAY

Coancil Investigating Committee Will Arraign Amos Baker Next Week.

THE FIRST MEETING HELD YESTERDAY The Investigation Will Delve Deep and Will Be Sensational. ALL PARTIES REPRESENTED BY COUNSEL

The Line of the Investigation Marked Out Detectives Must Specify, Giving Dates and Names in Each Charge.

Atlanta's Lexow committee began work yesterday afternoon, The course of the sensational investigation was outlined and the date for the first session was fixed for next Tuesday morn-

Then Captain Amos Baker, clerk to the rolice court, will stand up before the comittee and plead to the charges read. The meeting yesterday was held in the mayor's office, and there was an important air about the proceedings. Besides the members of the joint committee, there was quite a formidable array of attorneys presnt, representing all the parties concerned. Councilman Bell presided.

The meeting was merely a preliminary one. The thorough preparation being made gives an indication of the sensational character of the testimony to be introduced. It will be held under strict regulations, many witnesses will be examined and all the testimony in the case will be taken down for

The issue has been made, the fight is on, and the outlook is for one of the most sengational chapters that has ever been known in the city's history.

The charges which have been preferred against Captain Baker are of the most sensational character, and the investigation will be fruitful of many startling stories, if there is any truth in the charges as they are written. It is over the signature of Chief of Detectives Wright that the charges have been made, but before the investigation which has been ordered is opened the verbiage and manner of accuations will have to be changed and more specific declarations will be required of the Captain Baker's life in Atlanta was epitmized in The Constitution yesterday morning, and during the evening, when the in vestigating committee came together for the purpose of starting the investigation, there were present quite a number who were ready to make good all that had been Personnel of the Committee.

The investigating committee is compose of the tax committee and the police committee of the general council. It was to those committees that the papers were re ferred when City Clerk Woodward asked the general council for an investigation of the matter, and all of the papers in the case were transmitted to the committees in joint session yesterday afternoon.

The tax committee is composed of Mr Bell, chairman; Mr. Broyles, Mr. Howell Mr. Day and Mr. Sims, while the police committee is made up of Mr. Camp, chair man; Mr. Day and Mr. Broyles. The tax committee was named first in the order of reference, and for that reason Mr. Bell, chairman of that committee, was designat ed as chairman of the joint committee. In the mayor's office the two committees came together, and when the chairman, Mr. Bell, counted noses there were present besides Mr. Bell, Mr. Day, Mr. Camp and Mr. Sims, Mr. Day being a member of both committees. Mr. Broyles and Mr

Howell were the absentees. The papers were brought out, and Mr Bell, acting as secretary as well as chair. man, opened the bundle, saying:

The Papers Read. "Here are the papers upon which the charges are based. They are the same papers which were read in council by the clerk and then referred to the committee.'

The first paper read was the resolution of Mr. Welch, of the second ward, calling for the reference of the papers to committees. Then the letter of Clerk Woodward, to the general council, asking for the investigation and copies of the letters to Captain English, of the board of police commissioners, from Chief of Detectives Wright, and the other papers as it has gone left out of the package Mr. Bell held in his hand.

Captain Wright's Sensational Letter. 'Now," said Mr. Bell, holding the papers "Now," said Mr. Beit, nothing the profes in his hand, "the paper with which we have to deal is the one from Captain Wright, chief of the detective department, to Captain English, chairman of the board of police commissioners. That paper is the one which contains the charges against Mr. Baker.. That paper, as it reads, shows that Baker ran a beer saloon on Woodward avenue for a long time, three or four years, it says. Then he went with Hall, who was running the bar and billiard room in the National hotel, a place which the paper says was the home or rendezvous of hobos, thieves and crooks from all over the country and a place where blind tigers were abundant. The paper declares, also, that they, I guess it means Baker and Hall, were the recipients of stolen goods which Detective Looney found there and recovered. It says, too, that Baker received stolen Foods: at least that is the inference from ds; at least that is the inference from souds; at least that is the inference from the wording of the sentence, from a clerk in the city, and declares that he bought a fine overcoat from Hugh Wright, a roted crook. It declares that Baker has been a party to quite a number of robberies, such as are described in the papers submitted."

Many Attorneys Present. ere were in the office at the time Mr Bell completed his arraignment of Baker, attorneys for both the detective department and for the accused. Judge Ander-ron, the city attorney, and Mr. Fulton Colwille, his assistant, were present to attend the city's interest, while Colonel W. C. Glenn was on hand to represent the de-tective department, and Mr. L. Z. Rosser Save a voice for Baker, the man who is Asking for the resolution calling for the assing for the resolution caning for the investigation, Colonel Glenn took the floor and desired to know when the trial could be started. He then took an observation of the papers in the case and asked for information as to the manner in which the investigation would be conducted. Camp wanted the investigation postoned until next Tuesday morning at 9

That hour and day did not suit some of the attorneys, on account of their court engagements, and quite a little time was consumed in discussing the date for the

'I take it," said Colonel Glenn, "that charges have been made out and that the copy the chairman has is the one upon which the investigation will be conducted." They Must Specify.

"I beg my Brother Glenn's pardon," said Mr. Rosser, "but that paper is simply a sheet of vague charges without a speci-fication and no man can go to trial on that. Captain Baker is charged with being the associate of thieves, thugs and cut-throats, and unless the paper names those with whom he is charged with having as-sociated he will have no chance to dis-prove them. Let the charges name some of the thieves with whom he has been as-sociating, and he will have an opportunity to show that they are not thieves or that he had no knowledge of the fact that they were or that he did not associate with them."

The committee decided that the charges would have to carry specifications with them and that Chief of Detectives Wright would have to carry specifications with them and that Chief of Detectives Wright would have to give names, dates and other matters necessary to make his statement stand, Mr. Beil, the chairman, declaring that a support of the paper as it now read would be too general and should now read would be too general and should not be allowed by any investigating body. ot be allowed by any investigating body. The Hour for the First Session Fixed.

is satisfactory, your honor," : Glenn, addressing the chairm and between now and Saturday I will have a copy of the charges as they will be sub-mitted made out so that my Erother Rosser who appears for Captain Baker, can see it and also one for the city attorney, Judge Anderson and his assistant, Mr. Colville. As I understand it the investigation will not be opened until next week and Saturday will be plenty of time for them to have a copy of the paper."

After some discussion the joint committee agreed upon Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock as the hour for opening the investigation. "I would suggest," said Judge Anderson, the city attorney, "that the city clerk be authorized under the direction of the chairman, Mr. Bell, to issue subpoenas for witman, Mr. Bell, to issue subpoenas for witnesses for both sides and to issue demands for such papers as may be needed in the case. This may be necessary, as there will doubtless be some papers that will require Lively Testimony Expected. The proposition was agreeable to both Mr. Rosser and Colonel Glenn and the clerk was notified that he would be at the service was notified that he would be at the service of the chairman of the committee or any of the members of the committee to issue any papers that might be called for.

"Now," said Mr. Cap, "this case promises to be an interesting one before we complete it and the records much desirable.

Now, Said Mr. Cap, "this case promises to be an interesting one before we complete it, and the records may be desirable in the future. There will be many witnesses here to tell many tales, and the talk will be more than any of us can carry over our shoulders. I think it is nothing but justice to the members of the committee and to many of the witnesses to have that testimony taken down where it can be had at a minute's notice. So I move you, sir that we have a stenographer. Such a record as one could make would be a complete history of the case and we may want it. I am glad to say that Atlanta is not familiar with such things as this. Her people are all honest and there has been no maifeasance in office since I have been here. This is the first case of the kind since I have been in Atlanta and I think it would be wise to keep a good careful record of it whether Captain Baker be guilty of all the charges, which a good careful record of it whether Captain Baker be guilty of all the charges which have been brought against him or inno-cent."

A motion to employ a stenographer was nade and adopted.

The committee was in session quite a while, and though little was done in the way of lifting the cloud which hangs over the head of one of the city officials, it brought out the feethers. the head of one of the city officials, it brought out the fact that Atlanta has a general council which will not tolerate anything savoring of crookedness. Throughout the meeting there was apparent on the part of every member a desire to see the law carried out as it has been written and no one could have detected any desire to see any could have detected any desire to see any avasion of the closest compliance with the written laws of the city.

"I must confess," said one member of the committee, after the adjournment, "that those papers staggered me somewhat when they were read. That paper of Wright's makes Baker and Hall running mates in a business at the National hotel, and while Hall's name is not mentioned when reference is made to Baker, Chief Wright talks of 'they.' All of the papers put together show beyond a doubt that Wright never knew anything of the 'clear card' Connolly and Couch gave Hall when Hall was trying to have his whisky license renewed. On those papers staggered me somewhat when ing to have his whisky license renewed. On the whole, I think there will be some rich developments when the investigation comes

During the day there was a great deal of talk about the matter. Both Captain Baker and the detective department found friends who were not only ready to talk for them but who did talk.

"THE PASSING SHOW."

"The Passing Show," which is a clever production from the pen of Sidney Rosen-feld, was given an entirgly inadequate presentation at the Grand yesterday aftern and last night. The company is a large one, but the principals simply rattle around in the places assigned them. The difference between the original company and the one which appeared night is the difference between John Hen-shaw and Barney Fagan: Henshaw is a comedian and Fagan does the best he can-which isn't much.

The company was, however, handlcapped by the illness of Laura Biggar, the hand-some and clever young woman who has the leading role, an under study being in the part yesterday.

Of the specialties, the Byron sisters and the pickaninny dancers were the best. The satire of the play is almost entirely local to New York, and the lines, which are exceedingly bright, in many instances lost their effect entirely.

The satire on the various operas is one of the hits of the play and was well given, but as a whole the performance did not be-gin to do justice to the play.

Mansfield Tonight.

Mr. Richard Mansfield appears at the Grand tonight. Mr. Mansfield is an actor of strong personality. His talent is many sided; he is equally facile in the represen-tation of comedy, society drama and tragedy. He is a man of intellectual power and enthusiasm, and artistic purpose has shown unflagging zeal in the produc-tion of new plays by American writers, and has staged them with prodigal extravagance. His literary skill is strongly defined. He has done more for the proof the drama in its highest form than any actor living. Mr. Mansfield will present three of his most important les from his repertoire of fourteen plays follows: Tonight, "Scenes from the Life of Napoleon Bonaparte;" at the matinee tomorrow, "Beau Brummel," and Friday evening, the new satirical comedy, "Arms and the Man."

"Newest Devil's Auction." The Grand will present next Monday and Tuesday evenings one of the strongest attractions securable in Charles H. Yale's newest Devil's Auction. Mr. Yale promises no end of novelties in the way of specialties, ballets, costumes, scenery and em-beilishments. The company of over sixty people, embracing a score of well-known artists, among whom are Sadie Stephens Jaguarina, Nera Vernon, Mildred Holden, Ella Dunbar, Gus Bruno, Jr., Al. W. Docker and Ed Snow, forms one of the strongest casts ever given this piece. The pecialties will include the Co-Noc troupe

Los Freres Caron, and the Lorella trio. The ballets will be headed by Mme. Chitton, Bartolotti and Amoro. Popular Prices. The Baldwin-Rodgers Company, supported by the charming little actresses the Rodgers sisters, is announced for a week of repertoire at DeGive's. The engagement begins Monday night, January 14th, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday. Popular prices, 10, 20 and 30 cents, will be charged during the week, ladies being admitted free Monday night when accompanied by a paid 30 cents ticket.

The bill for Monday night will be "A Leap for Life," a romantic comedy-drama of intense interest. The bill will be changed at each performance. Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder World's Fair Highest Medal and Diploms.

Disturbance and Discord Among Western

All of the Leading Passenger Agents of the South and West Are Gathered in Atlanta-Other News and Gossip. There is a railroad meeting of unusual

All the leading heads of the passenger departments of southern and western lines are now in the city and began a session ing upon western traffic from the south

This is the time of year when so many eople flock to Texas and other points be yond the Mississippi to seek homes in the o-called El Dorado lands of the west. It is a class of travelers who never go singly. One farmer in Georgia, for instance, will take a notion to go west and live in Texas. He will talk about it to his neighbors, and by the time he gets ready to start there is a party of three or four or five ready go with him.

In this way the traffic is built up and is quite a considerable item in the business of the season for the lines leading to the

As it happens, the territory of the South farther west than the city of Birmingham, and beyond that point some of the reads out of the association have been making free use of their privileges and have selling tickets at the rate of 2 cents per mile for parties of ten.

This had the effect of creating some disturbance, other lines observing the cheap rates and believing a general fre-for-all fight had been precipitated, pitched in with widespread slashing of rates, and wound up in a disastrous passenger war.
Rates went tumbling. One road would hear of another's having gone below tariff and would cut deeper. In this way tickets were sold as low as $7 from Chattanooga to Texas common points. This was more than 310 below tariff.

When things had jostled down to such a low figure and discord reigned throughout the south and west in the matter of Texas traffic. Commissioner Slaughter, of Southern Passenger Association, deemed it Southern Passenger Association, december wise to call a mass meeting of general passenger agents of all the leading lines of the south and west and take some action to put a stop to the disturbances and work for the maintenance of rates to Texas in the future. Such is the purpose of the convention or mass meeting of the passenger agents now eing held in this city.

The meeeting was called to order yesterday by Commissioner Slaughter and the nen knuckled down to business from the

Nothing definite was done, however, during the day. The afternoon was spent dis-cussing methods for putting at rest the present strife and turmoil, but the meeting present strife and turnoil, but the meeting adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning before taking definite action, thus giving special committees time to act upon certain propositions that were submitted to them.

"Hog Killin' Time." From The Buffalo Courier. Readers of that installment of Hardy's Readers of that installment of Hardy's novel, "Heart's Insurgent,," which was printed in the January Harper's will re-member how Judge Fawley revolted against hog killing. In his eyes the business had hog killing. In his eyes the business had absolutely no redeeming feature—at any rate when he had to attend to it. But Frank Stanton, of The Atlanta Constitution, looks at the thing in quite another light. He glories in "Hog Killin' Time," as the Be glories in Hog kills Time, as the subjoined lyric shows. It may be, however, that the Georgia poet has never killed a pig himself, the inspiration for his muse having been borne to him with the savor of a freshly roasted porker. However that may be, here are the verses, and they are commended to Mr. Thomas Har attention:

"There's joy in old Georgy In hog killin' time; The fiddles a-playin'—
The bells on the chime An' many a dollar An' many a dime Jest jingle, in Georgy At hog killin' time! "There's joy in old Georgy In hog killin' time; The weather is bracin'—

A feller feels prime The backlog is blazin'—
There's reason and rhyme,
An' yer feet find the fiddle
In hog killin' time!" Scrofula taint lurks in the blood of

"We're Right in the Push."

When the advertising atmosphere is so heavily charged with exaggeration, it is well to remember who the honest advertisers are. Windy assertions about GREAT reductions-advertising goods at impossible prices, find no lodging place in the minds of intelligent people. Dull trade throughout the legitimate business season may make necessary, wild statements from some clothiers to attract trade, but the schemers will have to scheme harder and find new disguises for their lame excuses before they can stop the people from coming to this store for honest values. The triumph of this store is the triumph of intelligence, and you have made it so. Trade has been up to the mark here, yet there's a touch of attractiveness in the styles and assortments. We've added another and more taking attraction-RE-DUCED PRICES (natural order of things here at this season); LOWER PRICES than you find ELSEWHERE....

THEHON, HOUSE BLAIR

The Mountaineer Was Blected to a County Office While in Jail.

A PICTURESQUE SON OF HABERSHAM

He Talks About His Election and Telis How His Wife Was in the Habit of Making Mountain Dew.

"I'm the only man in Habersham that kin reach up an' pull a 'possum outen the top uv a persimmon tree. I stand six feet an' a half even in my stockin' feet. I kin lick air man in Center Hill deestrict, an' my name is Benjamin Houston Blair, called influence is paramount in the rocky re-gions about Mount Airy. Politically he is a tower of strength. He is a formidable the unfortunate fellow who chances to incur

There was a municipal election in his district Monday. House Blair was not there. His natural proclivities for manufacturing mountain dew has caused him to be transported to Fulton county jail. Neither the adsence nor the charge weakened his power. The clans of Center Hill gathered together and when the ballots were counted out it was found that House Blair had been elected bailiff. Great was the rejoicing among his followers when the news of the result was announced and they sent a let-ter to their champion telling him "to hurry up an git" through servin' his sentence, that the court proceedin's were awaitin' on

In altitude the Hon. Benjamin Houston Blair almost rivals the rugged peaks of the Blue Ridge. His face is as red as the sunset about Mount Airy and his scant, unkempt beard is suggestive of the scrubby growth on its precipitous sides. His voice is deep like the distant rumbling of a cataract and his smile is as broad as the limits of his face will allow. He wears a spacious brimmed slouched hat which he is in the habit of pulling down over one eye. A blue striped shirt and a pair of jeans trousers stuffed in heavy, high-topped boots completes his costume. While he is talking he munches a huge hunk of tobacco and the wrinkles about his mouth are miniature aquaducts for carrying off the superfluous fluid.

'New the boys tuk it on themselves to elec' me to ther office uv bailiff, which office, as you uns knows, is in ther gift uv the people. I wasn't a-seekin' uv it, but they jes' give it to me to show that they didn't keer how much them thar revenues

House Blair has only six weeks more to serve. He is waiting impatiently for the time to come when he shell we have time to come when he shall go back to take charge of the Center Hill district as

HE REFUSED TO TALK. Rabbi Reich Has Nothing to Say of

His Congregation's Action.

The recent action of the Hebrew congregation in postponing the election of a rabb for the ensuing year has created no small amount of surprise among the friends and admirers of Rabbi Reich in this city.

It was thought by nearly every on that Rabbi Reich was secure in the affections of his large congregation, as no He-brew minister who has ever preached in the synagogue has made himself more popular with the people generally. The rabbi is a quiet, modest man, who has little to say in ordinary conversation, but who is, perhaps, one of the most scholarly men of his years in the south. He has been in this country for only eleven years and during that time he has mastered the English language so thoroughly that he speaks it at present with a native's ease and fluency.

The attitude of the Hebrew congregation towards the rabbi suggests the probability that he will meet with conscition when the that he will meet with opposition when the election is held this month. The rabbi came to Atlanta seven years ago and snce that time he has preached continuously to the Hebrew congregation. Rabbi Reich was seen last night by a representative of The Constitution, but re-fused to speak.

"I have nothing to say about the matter,"

said the rabbi. "I was surprised by the action of the congregation, but I have no desire to criticise the conduct of my pe

The rabbi was brief, but courteous, and this closed the conversation bearing upon this point. Referring to his residence in Atlanta, the rabbi said: "It gratifies me to know that I have many warm personal friends among the Christians of Atlanta. I have never sought the regard of any one by compromising my own convictions, but I have always tried to be fair and liberal, and this may explain the kind treatment which I have universally received." which I have universally received.

The rabbi is a stanch Hebrew and is well posted in the literature and traditions of his religion. He frequently preaches on the ancestry of the Jews and takes a special delight in speaking of the glorious renown of Israel.

In speaking of the rabbi a well-known Hebrew made the remark a few days ago that Rabbi Reich was beloved by every child in his corgregation and that a more devoted and conscientious man never ministered to the people. In this connection it may also be stated that a well-known Chris-tian minister, in speaking of the rabbi, observed that he was one of the best inform-ed and most scholarly men he had ever known.

The friends of the rabbi will no doubt rally to his support and do all in their power to overcome any opposition that may be offered his re-election.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS AND FORECAST

The sluggish movement of the storm which, since Monday evening, has been slowly moving over the southeastern states, has, to a great extent, modified the effect of the cold wave which was moving from the northwest, and, aithough there has been quite a decided fall in temperature throughout the greater portion of the eastern gulf states, the weather up to last evening had not been as cold as might otherwise have been expected from the indications of Tuesday morning. Yesterday the storm still hovered over the southeastern states, with its center near the Florida coast, while high barometric pressures prevailed to the west harometric pressures prevailed to the west and north. As a result of these conditions rain continued at points in the middle and eastern gulf states and snow in the districts near the middle and north Atlantic coast. At 8 o'clock last evening rain or snow was still falling at numerous stations snow was sign taking at numerous stations in the regions mentioned, and cloudy or partly cloudy weather was observed by bureau stations over the entire country, from the eastern slope of the Rockies to the Atlantic coast and from the gulf coast to the Canadian border.

For Georgia today: Rain and warmyr.

STATIONS AND STATE

OF WEATHER.

The programme for the Trilby evening is now about completed, and promises a rare treat to all who attend. Letters have been received from some of the leading literary men and women of America, giv ing their opinions on various characters in and phases of the novel. These letters will be read aloud at the evening, and will afterwards by reproduced in facsimile in a Trilby pamphlet, orders for which will be taken on the Trilby evening. One interesting paper to be read that has not yet been announced is on "Little Billie's' Unristmas experience, by Judge A. E. Calhoun, Judge Calhoun will prob-ably state what he would have done with "Little Billie" had he fallen under his jurisdiction on that memorable holiday occasion. Dudar and l'Zauzon will likewise come within the province of Judge Cal-

who led "Little Billie" astray. The programme, when completed, will be an unusually excellent one, and those who are present on Tuesday evening will hear some unusually clever and entertaining pa pers and talks.

We have before called attention to a great calamity threatening the people of the South. In no section of the country is there greater need for Liver Medicines than in the sotuh, and this has encouraged unscrupulous persons to take advant age of people's misery and offer them all sorts of stuff as a cure-all for liver troubles. The big profit to the druggist is the road by which they reach the public. Druggists of high honor will not be party to an outrage. ### JUMBO, CAN THIS BE?

Conneilman Mayson Says the City Warden Is Not a Fit Man.

A GRAVE CHARGE IS

Has Some Sensational Documents in His Pocket.

MAY SPRING THEM AT NEXT MEETING

Jumbo Vigorously Denies the Allegation, and Is Confident That He Will Come Out All Right.

Since that Sunday morning, in the spring of '80, when he made a raid on the Girl of the Period, Jumbo Hunter has been a

Probably no man ever connected with the police department of the city has acquired a reputation as extensive as that Hunter accumulated during his unique career. From one end of the south to the other he has been heard of, and there is hardly a paper in the union that has not paid the printer

Just now there is every reason to believe that Hunter will be more widely known within the next few weeks than ever before, and that his name will be in many headlines in American newspapers. In Atlanta, Hunter is known more extensively than any other citizen, and his fame has gone into the wards and homes of the people because of his work. By some he is liked, while by others he is detested. History after history of Hunter has been written and now another chapter is to be added to the book so interesting to the man who has served Atlanta for years.

The compiler, if not the composer of the new chapter, is to be Hon. T. C. Mayson, the new member of the general council from the first ward.

The first paragraph of the new chapter tence is of the most sensational character. The ink is hardly dry on the page yet, but before the next meeting of the general council the story will have been completed and the members of that body will be given a chance to hear a story full of pith, point and interest. The truth of the story will be vouched for by the author and as an appendix he will present sworn statements of a number of well-known Atlantians who are anxious to have their names go down in history in the same book as that containing first section of the interesting chapter will be malfeasance in office and this will be followed up by another declaring that Hunter, the man who has made so many arrests for immorality is himself immoral.

"The truth of the matter is," said Mr. Mayson, who is chairman of the relief committee of the general council, the committee under which Hunter works, "Hunter should not only be fired from the job he should be made leave the town. He is beyond doubt a man of the greatest immorality and 1 have all evidence necessary to prove it."

"What's he done?" was asked.

"Many things a gentleman should not do.
Why, over there in the first ward he was a constant and frequent visitor at the house of a woman who was made leave the neighborhood. He was seen to go there early in the evening and remain until late at night So frequently was this the case that the neighbors caused the woman to be moved. Hunter was approached about the matter. and while he admitted going to the house claimed that his visits were purely in the cause of charity. This we all knew to be untrue, and we had many reasons to know it. There was no guess work about it."

"When was this?"
"Over there it went on until the woman moved, and then Hunter followed her to her new home. Since then she has moved again, and I am told that she now lives right close to Hunter's own home. But, in making these visits, Hunter was doing the city wrong, too. He carried there great quantities of provisions and clothing. About quantities of provisions and clothing. About this there is no doubt, and I have all the when the time comes. carried, as I have said, clothing which had been given to Atlanta for charity, and this was sold. See?"

And as he spoke the new councilman

pelled from his pocket a large package of letters, every one containing some charge of the kind against the city warden. "Now, see this?" Mr. Mayson went on, opening a letter. "See what it says. The —Mayor King new divides his time be-In the city, a party whose word is known to be good the city over. See what he says. He says, as you can read, that he called at the woman's house and found a large lot of clothing, which she offered to sell. He then, as you see he writes, faced her with the fact that Hunter had sent the city. The woman admitted, as you see, that Hunter had sent them, and that he had told her to sell them, so that the money could be used in helping Atlanta's city. The woman admitted, as you see, that Hunter had sent them, and that he had told her to sell them, so that the money could be used in helping Atlanta's poor. Why, I know of cases where he has done worse than that. I know of a case where Mr. Barclay, the undertaker, was trying to help some poor people out of town, and Hunter gave them the passes. At the depot he found that they had three or four dollars, and he refused to give up the transportation unless they gave him rip before them, and Mr. Barclay showed Hunter that they needed the money to buy something to eat on the road. But he wouldn't have it, and took the last cent and sent them out without a penny. Then there are several stories of burials which will make interesting matter when it is found that Hunter took money and ments.

"Yes, I am going to make it my business to see that 'Jumbo' Hunter ain't warden of the city of Atlanta another year. If he offers for election at the next meeting, I will show the council what kind of a men he is, and I will make it my object to prove everything I say about him. It will be a lively investigation when I make my charges against him and the matter

Warden Hunter, when acquainted with the proposed charges, smiled a little, and declared that there was no truth in them, and asserted his ability to disprove them when they are preferred.

IS JUDGE EDMONDSON INDICTED?

This, It Is Rumored, Is the Action of the United States Grand Jury.

The United States grand jury held an important session yesterday and the result of the session is probably an indictment against Judge John Edmondson, of Murray county, implicating him in the alleged murder of Henry Worley.

Colonel Joe James, the district attorney vas asked about the matter, but he refused to disclose the action of the grand jury.

Indications, however, point strongly in the direction of a true bill against this nguished autocrat of the mountains. Judge Edmondson is one of the largest planters in north Georgia and owns three thousand acres of the best land in Murray county. His word is law in that part of the country and he reigns over his wide plantation with the sway of an absolute imperialism.

Judge Edmondson is the father-in-law of ex-Senator Rembert, who was deposed from his position as deputy United States collector a few weeks ago. He is a man of strong political influence and is said to be at the head of the kuklux organization. The indictment of Judge Edmondson will add a new element of interest to one of the most thrilling cases ever tried in the

He was a very material witness and his evidence was practically the same as that which he gave on the old doctor's trial.

He thought they were fired from two distinct pistols and on the side of the pavement. The flashes were nearly or pavement. pavement. He came to Atlanta with a pretty wife, a snug sum of money and several large trunks containing his implements of trade and other belongings. He is now penniless and alone, a stranger in a strange place, minus wife, money and trunk.

Cox recounts his grievances in a woeful tone. One feature of his story is queer, "I came to Atlanta with every hope of doing well. I was a newly married man and therefore happy. As soon as I arrived in the city I inquired for a pleasant boarding place, and was directed to a private family living on South Forsyth They received my wife and I cordially and I thought that everything would move smoothly. The people were very religiously inclined, and it was like being in a

"When I asked him what I must do, he told me that I could get out of his house if I couldn't pay my board. Of course I had no money, as my wife had skipped with it all and he laughed at me when I asked him to let me stay there that night.

"I had nowhere to go and had no friends. That man, I thought from the way he had prayed, was going to help me out, but he prayed, was going to help me out, but he showed me the door, and now I am without anything in the world."

The name that Cox gives of the man who has attached his trunk is that of a well-known churchman. Yesterday afternoon there was a movement on foot, in one of the charitable associations, to make up the amount necessary to redeen his belongings.

In the meantime, a merchant on Whitehall street has given him the privilege of sleeping in an up-stairs room. He says that he will remain in Atlanta until he learns something of the whereabouts of "My pardon was granted after three medical boards had passed on my condition, and this is a most unjust reflection on the probity of the honorable practitioners who comprised those boards, to say nothing of the great injury that was done me. "My condition is now such that I never pass a painless moment, both legs being eaten into the bone, leaving great holes that are constantly discharging. I never expect to be a well man. I can see no reason why Mr. Porter should seek to put me in disfavor with a people among whom I am trying to make an honest living, merely because, in his trouble, he desired to prevent the pardon of one who has done him a wrong.

NORWOOD INSTITUTE,

Washington City.

The exceptional opportunities for general culture afforded by the capital of the United States render the CITY OF WASHINGTON.

the most desirable location for a school for the daughters of refined people, and those opportunities are utilized to the utmost by the pupils of Norwood institute, under the conduct of Mr. and Mrs. William D. The distinguishing feature of Norwood institute is the thoroughness of its preliminary training, and the care bestowed upon those elementary branches too often neglected in schools of otherwise great excellence.

I couldn't understand it. All at once I became blind and began to stagger. I know that I was not drunk. I will say though that I had taken a drink of corn whisky that afternoon, at 3 o'clock, before going on duty, but I don't see that it could affect me. I know that something was the matter with me. ### MAYOR KING THERE WED IN A BASEMENT walked briskly into his office Tuesday after dinner, he was informed by his assistant Miss Willie Williams, that she had taken advantage of his absence and had wedded Mr. Paul Haynie, the engineer of the Inman building.

It Was the First Meeting of the Justice Orr Pigured in a Most Romantic Marriage Tuesday.

SINCE HE WENT INTO THE CHAIR IT IS NOW MR, AND MRS, PAUL HAYNIE

It was a surprise to the doctor, who is now looking for another assistant, but he has bowed to the results brought about by a mutual love which bound the sixth oor to the basement by a tender feeling. The ceremony was performed by Justice Edgar H. Orr, who was instructed that for the present the marriage was to remain a secret, in the basement of the Inman building amid the noise of the machiney and underneath the rattle of the wagons on the pavement above.

Miss Williams is a charming young woman and has many friends who will be surprised to learn of her marriage. The fortunate young man, Mr. Paul Haynie, is a splendid young fellow and has a wide acquaintance in the city. He has a fine position in the Inman building.

Miss Williams and Mr. Haynie met some time ago and each found in the other many admirable qualities. The young man was not long in discovering that he was thoroughly in love with Miss Williams, rnd they became engaged. Every evening Miss Williams was escorted home by Mr. 11aynie, but to no member of her family did the young lady mention her intentions.

The two young people decided to get married, but to keep their wedding a secret for some reason. Mr. Haynie did not find t convenient to leave his work, and after thinking the matter over decided that it might be a good idea to have the wedding in the basement of the Inman building Justice Orr was sought, the marriage license having been secured, and he agreed to go to the Inman building and unite the two happy hearts.

Tuesday, Miss Williams stepped to the elevator and walked in. Instead of getting off at the ground floor, she went down into the basement. Justice Orr was at once notified that everything was ready and he went at once to where he was anxiously awaited.

In the midst of the machinery and in the dim light of the basement the two were married. The ceremony over, Miss Williams left her husband and returned to the office of Dr. Hinman. The young engineer again cautioned Justice Orr that the mat-ter was to be kept a secret, and as prosaically as possible went back to his work. The appearance of the announ today's paper will doubtless be the signal
